Kenzie Perry
for Jamie Stern

products Palmetto, Laurel, Mira recap The Miami native and Ze Haus Design Studio founder channels the florid foliage and Caribbean culture of his hometown via tropical motifs rendered in lustrous, organic hues of New Zealand wool and bamboo silk.

Jan Kath
of Jan Kath Design

product Activate Turbo recap Screenshots of '80s arcade game ephemera got dissected into 1.7 million pixels—which correlate to individual handknots forming the designer's abstract, modern take on Persian rugs, executed in psychedelic hues of wool and silk.

Brad Ascalon
for Kateha

product Verbena
recap A series of sketches in which the industrial designer examined visual hierarchy sparked a monochromatic flat-weave of New Zealand wool, whose pile rings overlap like a Venn diagram.

Prabal Gurung
for Rugs USA

product SoHo
recap The manufacturer's first collaboration with the Nepalese-American fashion designer includes 28 designs, among them this tassel-edged wool flatweave featuring cerebral line art in a tasteful hue that beckons pumpkin spice.
